○ Changing Service

◎ Competitiveness in Market Place
Being competitive in the market is still an important characteristic of an organizations success. However, since 2015 there has been a 13% increase in the importance and focus organizations give to changing the means by which they deliver their services, while being competitive in the market decreased a significant 13% in the same period. Therefore, it is vital that organizations embrace a resilient attitude and also integrate innovative tools that enhance their connections and escalate the reach of their services.

New times require new delivery models and channels

Coming Home is the planet's first dedicated interactive mobile app with an included online case management system that focuses on victims of trauma, including human trafficking.
Adapts to fit your company's specific needs

- Organizations: Provide your clients, mentees, survivors and human trafficking victims a reliable means of engagement with your programs.
- Survivors seeking services are also able to find medical, life coaching, mental health and mentoring services regardless of their situation once connected to a digital advocate.

Innovation is at the core of this new software technology created by Dr. Brook Parker Bello, who gives vision and heart to victim services by encouraging other survivors of trauma that it's never too late to develop, build, and become a thought leader and innovator after experiencing a lack of value or hope.
